If the work has been accepted by a journal in any form (including a letter), it must not be published (in print or online) before this abstract is presented. Please seek advice from the AAGBI if uncertain. If the abstract has been presented at another meeting, it is not necessary to state this in the abstract, but it must be stated during oral presentation/included on the poster.
- That any commercial interests or conflicts of interest regarding the abstract have been declared explicitly in the 'Acknowledgements' field
- That if the abstract is published in Anaesthesia in the form of a fully referenceable online supplement, minor changes may be made by the Editor and the copyright will rest with the AAGBI.
